JULY 2021

Hertsmere Community Engagement

Welcome to the first edition of the Hertsmere Community Newsletter, where we will be sharing news, information and events from the community for the community.

Meet our two new Community Engagement Officers

Lee Meyer (left) works across Hertsmere, reaching out to communities and groups to share their news and information.

After only a month in his new role, Lee has already built a large network of partners and has been busy engaging with residents and groups especially in Potters Bar and Bushey.

Please feel free to contact Lee at: Lee.Meyer@hertsmere.gov.uk

David Golding (right) is focussed on Cowley Hill in Borehamwood, sharing news and information from local communities.

After a few months in his new role, David has built a large network of partners engaging with all communities across Cowley Hill.

You can contact David at: David.Golding@hertsmere.gov.uk

Herts Vision Loss is a Hertfordshire based independent charity, supporting visually impaired and blind people along with their families.

For over 100 years they have helped thousands of people.

If you need help, Herts Vision Loss is there for you.

They aim to empower people dealing with vision issues to increase their independence and reduce social isolation and loneliness.

Their services include:

- Home visits and befriending
- Hospital eye clinic information and support
- Sight Information Points where they demonstrate the latest equipment
- Ears for Eyes counselling service for people experiencing vision loss
- Talk Time, a single 15-minute telephone conversation with a qualified counsellor
- ‘Sight Line’ a telephone information service
- An advocacy service to help get your voice heard
- Visits to schools and groups to raise awareness of sight loss and talk about our work
- Signpost and introduce people to other services.
- Support care home staff and residents
- Specialised support in using IT equipment at home
- A minibus, which can be borrowed or hired

Summer holiday family learning opportunities

Short summer courses are now available to book at Hertfordshire Adult and Family Learning Service.

If you are working with a parent or guardian who is looking for summer holiday activities to enjoy with their child, please ask them to visit www.hertfordshire.gov.uk/hafls.

Courses include Marvellous Maths, Fun Phonics and Story Explorers. The courses all take place between 9.30am and 11.30am online, which helps give structure to your day before you head on out.

As a Hertfordshire resident, you can access these fully-funded courses for free.

There is also a range of family learning courses spanning into the autumn, including adult-only courses to help on a range of family matters, including wellbeing and financial budgeting.

Yoga for mental health

As a community, we're thankfully starting to let go of the stigma attached to mental health. Managing life's challenges can be a huge burden but we are beginning to feel more comfortable sharing our emotional struggles with those around us.

So, can yoga really help? Extensive training and research has proven that yes, it can!

Yoga is so much more than simply making shapes with your body on a mat. Breath work and mindfulness also play a key part in trauma-sensitive yoga; blended together, these practices can significantly reduce emotional pain and suffering. Yoga provides us with a treasure chest of lifelong tools which improve quality of life for so many people. With the right teacher, trauma-sensitive yoga can show you how to apply transformational techniques into your day to day life.

Anyone can practice yoga: men, women, young, old... it's definitely not just a 'bendy sport for bendy men and women'! It's adaptable to your unique needs: one-to-one yoga, provides a more bespoke service for individual guidance, for those who want a deeper practice with greater benefits.

Following the pandemic, our awareness of mental health is continuing to expand; more of us are trying holistic solutions such as yoga and meditation to ease the pain of emotional suffering.

If you would like to find out more about trauma-sensitive yoga or yoga for mental wellbeing please email Helen at helencooperyoga@gmail.com or visit the website: www.helencooperyoga.com
